EnviroFlash automatic air quality notification system available statewide

BATON ROUGE - Would you like to know how your air quality is and whether it is healthy or unhealthy? You can sign up for EnviroFlash, a free electronic system that sends emails and texts about your daily air quality forecast to your email or cell phone.

Now, EnviroFlash is available statewide and citizens can subscribe to the forecast at the level that they want – daily or only when the air could be unhealthy. You can pick the time of your email and the frequency. The EnviroFlash system will also send out alerts for unusual air quality events, such as fires, that affect air quality.

Citizens are encouraged to subscribe to EnviroFlash so they will have the latest air quality information for their area.
